2013-2014 Catalog (Reported Fall 2012)

I. SIGNIFICANT TRENDS:

Most of the changes in the catalog this year were made to improve the clarity of course names or descriptions, and to remove redundant courses that existed previously to facilitate scheduling, but that are no longer necessary. The college continues to use continuous curricular assessment data to make changes to existing courses and study current needs. This year those efforts at the level of the curriculum committee have focused on communication and business skills, but resulting changes have not translated into new courses at this point.
